DAFG Jour Fixe with Kiron & Syrian Researchers

Lost in Translation – Education in Times of Migration

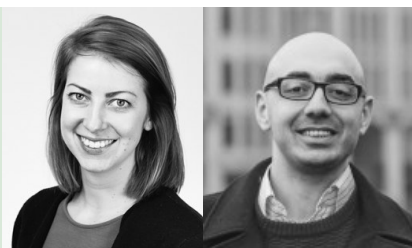

On Thursday, 20 October 2016, at 6:30 pm

DAFG Office Friedrichstr. 185, 10117 Berlin

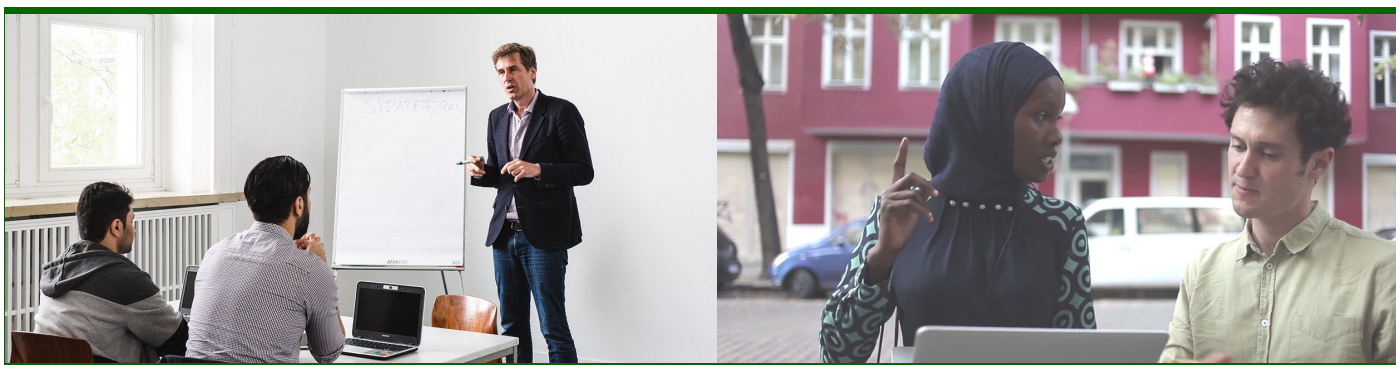

What is the future of education in a globalised world with more than 200 million people on the move? This and other questions will be discussed on our next Jour Fixe with the young Berlin based Start-Up Kiron Open Higher Education, an organization that offers refugees access to higher education, and the founder of Syrian Researchers who engage in translating international scientific news into Arabic. Our guests for the event will be Dr. Mouhannad Malek, Founder of Syrian Researchers and scientist at the Leibniz Institute for Molecular Pharmacology, and Nora Hauptmann, Head of NGO Relations for Kiron.

Language: English

The social Start-Up Kiron Open Higher Education was founded in 2015 by Vincent Zimmer and Markus Kreßler. Kiron is worldwide the first education platform, that offers refugees full access to higher education. Syrian Researchers is a Syrian initiative that was launched by a group of Syrian undergraduate, graduate and postgraduate students and researchers in all scientific and academic fields residing in Syria and around the world. The team works on translating scientific news into Arabic to present them to Arabic readers.

We look forward to your participation. If you wish to attend, please register until 18 October 2016 via our website or with Jonas Reiche, Project Coordinator (jonas.reiche@dafg.eu).
